Capital

GOV. BLAINE TALKS ON TAX
Take Up Farmers' Problem—
Only Legislative Gathering,
Is Claim

Washington — The purpose of the new "progressive" movement inaugurated Friday by the organization of the "progressive bloc" in congress were declared formally to be legislative and not political in resolutions adopted Saturday at a general public conference.

Senator LaFollette, Republican, Wisconsin, who with Representative Huddleston, Democratic, Alabama, called the conference under the auspices of the Peoples Legislative Service, presided over the general public gathering Saturday which was attended by more than 100 members of congress, governors and other leaders. Representative Woodruff, Republican, Michigan, was elected secretary of the conference which closes with a dinner at night.

The first resolution adopted by the convention declared that the movement was "nonpartisan" and would devote itself to "consideration of devising methods and means for cooperation and support of the general legislative program adopted Friday by the new progressive congressional bloc."

At the suggestion of President Gompers of the American Federation of Labor, the resolutions had been amended to declare the movement "nonpartisan" instead of "non-political."

"BOB" IS CHAIRMAN

In opening the conference as chairman of the Peoples Legislative Service, Senator LaFollette said the time appeared opportune for the "progressive movement" and there seems to be a mandate growing out of the election for a movement to "advance the interests of the people."

He declared organization of the new bloc was "the greatest and most encouraging thing" in his experience.

"It is proposed," said Senator LaFollette, "that each legislative step shall be well grounded and not all at one stroke."

A committee on resolutions was appointed, headed by Frederic C. Howe, former immigration commissioner at New York. Other members designated include Representative John M. Nelson of Wisconsin.

A special committee to draft separate resolutions declaring for a national movement for direct primaries was headed by former Representative Keating of Colorado.

TALKS ON FARMER

Speeches urging aid for farmers were made by Senators elect Wheeler of Montana and Frazier of North Dakota. They said the farmers were not receiving the cost of production and were suffering from high freight rates and car shortage. An investigation of the car situation was advocated by Mr. Wheeler. Declaring that "the present administration is trying to forestall any action by the progressives and steal their thunder" on the question of farmer relief, Mr. Wheeler said the northwest wanted results and was not particular about the form of credit received.

Farm prices should be fixed and stabilized, it was declared by Senator-elect Frazier who said both state and federal aid was needed by farmers. Referring to administration plans for farm credit, Mr. Frazier said that lower money rates would not alone be sufficient to aid farmers but they also must get better prices for their products.

"Something must be done to help the farmers," said Mr. Frazier, "or the nation will go broke as the farmers have gone broke."

In introducing Governor Blaine of Wisconsin Senator LaFollette said that a number of other progressive governors were prevented from attending by the meetings of their legislatures but that a conference of progressive governors in January was planned to formulate a program of progressive action.

TALKS ON TAX

Washington—Repeal of the secrecy clause in both federal and state income tax laws was urged by Governor J. J. Blaine, speaking before the convention of Progressives here Saturday, as one effective way of making wealth bear its just burden of taxation, which he said, it is now escaping.

Quoting Andrew Mellon, secretary of the treasury, as saying that the government is unable to collect taxes due it from income and surtaxes on excess profits, the Wisconsin governor asserted that what Mr. Mellon meant was that "the profiteers and millionaires escape income and surtaxes by making false returns, sometimes through innocence, perchance, but often through fraud and deceit or by legal devices and tricks of the trade."

ALLEGED POISON CANDY GIRL UNABLE TO TESTIFY

Chilton, Wis.—Anna Lentz, confessed poisoner of Mrs. Theresa Schneider, mother of 8 small children, was physically unable to be taken before Justice of the Peace John P. Hume Saturday when her case was called for arraignment and plea.

The official report of Dr. Daniel Hopkinson, Milwaukee pathologist, had not yet been received. The justice continued the case until Dec. 10. Dr. Hopkinson who conducted a post-mortem and took the stomach contents to Milwaukee for a chemical examination reported by long distance telephone to the district attorney here that frogs which he had treated hypodermically with a solution obtained from the stomach contents, had died within 21 minutes. He said there was no doubt that Mrs. Schneider died of strychnine poisoning.

Frank Schneider, who was the husband of Theresa admitted to the district attorney that he had been in intimate with the Lentz girl, the official reported. No action has yet been taken against Schneider.

CAPTURE PARTY WITHIN, AIM OF PROGRESSIVES

Third Party Not Exactly Out Of Running—Presidential Drive Starts

By DAVID LAWRENCE
Copyright, 1922, by The Post Pub. Co.

Washington—The presidential campaign of 1924 might well be said to be in today. An intense struggle for control of the Republican party, in fact an undermining of its present conservative leadership from the east, is directly involved in the conference of progressives called by Senator LaFollette and meeting here.

Ostensibly the movement is bipartisan. Some Democrats have been drawn into the progressive group. Ostensibly its motive is merely legislative. Some major issues will be discussed and ideas exchanged with the vague purpose of persuading progressives to act in concert. The idea of a bloc is disclaimed—no pledges are to be asked for specific measures which is the way the tariff bloc and the farm bloc have operated. But the ostensible purposes are not the real purposes.

"INTERNAL JEALOUSIES"

Something deeper and more far-reaching than the attitude of a small group of fifteen senators and fifteen representatives on current issues is meant by the "progressive" conference. Perhaps none of the conferees can tell at the outset just what the objective is for there are internal jealousies and presidential aspirations and sectional interests all entangled and interwoven.

But the one certain thing about which there can be no dispute is the avowed confession of a lack of confidence in the leaders of the Republican party. Senator LaFollette is striking out for leadership of his group because he feels more can be obtained that way than by hammering at the unyielding conservatives who run things for the administration in congress.

The object then is revolt. "Progressive" argue that they are merely banding themselves together to secure advancement of progressive measures. They deny a third party is in the make. The truth is they don't know any more about it than anybody else on the outside. They have by their call of a conference, however, broken away from the regular Republican leadership and essayed to take things into their own hands. They are trusting to circumstances and opportunity to tell them the next movement as a counter move President Harding and his lieutenants in congress have determined to steal the thunder of the Progressive group.

Certain things which the more radical of the "progressive" coalition may advocate such as a restoration of excess profits taxes will be ignored by the administration but those measures which have been the basis not only for the strength of the farm bloc but have tempted some of the newly elected senators to fall in with the plans of the "progressive" conference will be made part and parcel of the administration program.

SEEK TO APPEASE FARMER

It was no mere coincidence that the plans of the Harding administration to take up in earnest legislation for the relief of the farmers' woes should be announced at a white house conference on the very day when the new "progressive" group is meeting in the national capital.

Secretary Wallace of the department of agriculture upon whom Mr. Harding has leaned from the beginning for advice Daugherty, attorney general and political mentor of the

THEORY OF DRUNKEN BRAWL IN MURDER IS DISCHARGED

By Associated Press

Milwaukee—Authorities of Racine discarded the theory that the mysteriously murdered youth found beneath a Kilbourn culvert Thanksgiving day was killed in a drunken brawl.

A post-mortem examination of the body by two physicians revealed that the youth had consumed no alcoholic liquor when the time of his death. Coroner W. W. Kison expressed the opinion that it is not likely that one so young was in a party with three intoxicated men. The young men who are said to have walked three-fourths mile for a pail of water for the radiator of their car were described as being intoxicated.

MARINETTE HOPES TO BEAT WEST ALLIS TODAY

By Associated Press

Marinette—Superior Central high's victory over LaCrosse high football team Thanksgiving day spurred the Marinette high school gridirers in their last practice drill Friday in hopes of decisively defeating West Allis and claiming a right to meet the northerners at Green Bay in a contest to decide the state championship. Superior has indicated its willingness to meet Marinette in case La Crosse was defeated last Thursday.

West Allis-Marinette game Saturday is expected to shatter all attendance records here for an interscholastic contest. All gate receipts, above the expenses of the visiting team, will be given over to the new LaCrosse Athletic field at Marinette.

Six Marinette players will be seen on the local gridiron for the last time Saturday, being lost to the team by graduation in the spring.

Try To Lock Tiernan In Sanitarium

By Associated Press

Chicago—John J. Tiernan, former professor of law at Notre Dame university had not been committed to the Cook-Psychopathic hospital, early Saturday on a writ of commitment issued by County Judge Righolmer Friday night, and the whereabouts of him and first wife, Mrs. Augusta Tiernan and three children of the family was unknown.

Mr. Tiernan telephoned his wife at the home of her sister, Mrs. Frances Pulaski as soon as he learned the commitment had been signed at the behest of Mrs. Pulaski, who asserted her belief the former tutor was unbalanced mentally. Mrs. Tiernan gathered her children about her and hurriedly left the Pulaski home in a taxicab to join her husband.

Since then trace of them has been lost.

FUTURE IS MYSTERY

As to the Tiernans' future, no one seemed willing even to hazard a guess.

Immigration of the Tiernans from South Bend to Chicago took place Friday afternoon, following the public sale of the household effects of the family. All forenoon a curious crowd of neighbors and sightseers milled about the Tiernan home, occasionally the fancy of one would be caught by some bit of furnishing, the carefully priced tag would be inspected, and John for the moment would turn bargainer.

TIERNAN FLITS UP ON TRIP

Arrived in Chicago, Mrs. Tiernan and the children went to Franklin Park, where they rested in semi quiet. For the professor, however, there was no such repose. Hardly had he alighted from the South Bend train than a report reached him that an effort would be made to have him placed under observation. This disquieting report was more or less confirmed in his mind when another message bearer informed him that a deputy sheriff was searching for him with a writ.

It was then that the flight and pursuit began. Tiernan, watching for an opportunity, lost himself in the crowd, and when acquaintances looked for him he had vanished.

HAD OWN CAR WHILE IN PEN, TELLS PROBES

Former Prisoner Admits Broken
Rules In Milwaukee Prison
Scandal

Milwaukee — Admissions that he had been permitted to violate several rules for prisoners at the house of correction were made by Harry Dusold, sentenced to the house of correction for violation of the Volstead act, when he was called to the witness stand late Friday in the hearing to investigate charges of incompetency and favoritism toward prisoners against Inspector William H. Momen and Deputy Inspector Edward Maederer.

Dusold testified that he had driven his own car while at the institution, but added that this was only because he did not understand the mechanism of other machines and that he was employed as the chauffeur for Momen when he was permitted to drive his machine.

DENIES "JOYRIDE" TRIPS

Dusold denied having driven alone with Joe Budar or with any other prisoners at the house of correction. In answer to charges that he had been seen alone at Graceland cemetery with his machine, he declared that he had been sent there by Momen to investigate a report that campers were occupying cemetery ground.

He also admitted having been permitted to smoke cigars, stating that he had been given to him by friends who visited him. On one occasion he also tried eggs in the basement of the institution, but that he was there primarily to care for an incubator which had been filled with eggs for hatching.

ADMITTS RECEIVING LIQUOR

Emphatic denial that he had ever drunk with officials were made by Dusold. He admitted, however, that he had received liquor from friends, while visiting with them. While en route to Milwaukee with a guard and had lunch at the Athletic club, where he had a charge account, he declared. While in the care of the guard, he also visited a dentist here, he said.

When cross-examined by Attorney Arthur J. Bartlett, counsel for Paul Troszczek, discharged chauffeur, whose charges brought the investigation, he denied having driven Momen to his home and also that he had ever brought beer to the institution in a suitcase.

VISITING RULE BROKEN

During the first three weeks that he spent at the house of correction he was permitted to receive visitors in the south detention ward, which is contrary to an institution rule, Dusold testified. After this time he was obliged to receive them in the regular visiting chambers, he said.

Dusold admitted having driven Momen to the flat of Harry Opperman, who was sentenced to the house of correction on charge of violating the Sevenson law, but denied having gone into the place with Momen.

THREE DROWN WHEN CAR JUMPS BRIDGE

Nicholas Gonner, Sr., Publisher,
Is Among Victims—Three Others Escape

By Associated Press

Janesville, Wis. — Hurled over a concrete bridge and buried beneath their automobile in four feet of water, three persons were drowned near South Wayne, Saturday morning. Three others escaped unhurt.

The dead: Nicholas Gonner, Sr., Dubuque, publisher and editor of the Daily American-Tribune, a Catholic newspaper, and editor of the Catholic Herald, a Milwaukee weekly; John Schroeder, Dubuque; Anna Gonner, the publisher's daughter.

Those who escaped injury are Nicholas Gonner, Jr., Fred Kempf and Miss Elizabeth Hershbeck, all of Dubuque.

According to reports from South Wayne, the large touring car, was being driven at a speed approximating 50 miles an hour. Approaching the bridge, a narrow one over Wolf creek, it swerved suddenly. With a terrific crash it rammed the side, hit the abutment and plunged high over the rail.

The uninjured occupants were able to throw themselves to safety. The others were jammed into the mud at the bottom of the stream as the car turned turtle and crashed down upon them.

When the victims were extricated from the wreckage, they were dead. There were few marks upon their bodies, showing that they were smothered by the waters, imprisoned under the tonneau.

Mr. Gonner and his companions were on their way from Dubuque to Milwaukee, via Janesville. It was planned to transfer the publishing of the Daily Tribune from the Iowa City to Milwaukee, and the party was journeying there for a business conference in that direction.

By Associated Press

Green Bay—Hundreds of friends of Odile Gilson, of Dyckesville, near here, whose wedding day last Tuesday was terminated with her own death as a result of burns, which she received while trying to start a fire in the kitchen stove, were in sorrow instead of being present at a happy affair, celebrating the return of a happily wedded couple. More than 1,500 people attended the services, heaping the casket with flowers.

The fatal burning of the 19-year-old bride-to-be occurred two hours previous to the hour set for her wedding to a Dyckesville farmer. The girl, arose early to prepare for the wedding. Noticing the fire in the kitchen stove, out, she attempted to light the same by the use of kerosene, the explosion which followed and the flames burned her to death. Scores of friends had gathered at the church awaiting the ceremony only to be greeted with a death announcement.

Master Bakers Protest Refusal Of Higher Priced Bread

GOVERNMENT INVESTIGATES

Disorders

By Associated Press

Paris—The majority of the bakery shops in Paris and the suburbs closed at noon Saturday in compliance with the decision of the master bakers to cease the production of bread as a protest against the official refusal to increase the price two sous per kilo, to one franc, 15 centimes. The government immediately ordered an inquiry with a view to immediate prosecution. The reasons for the master bakers strike is to force the government to do away with the law enacted during the French revolution in July 1791 under which the government has the right to fix the price of bread in respect of the price of wheat flour. More than five million persons are affected by the closing of some 3,500 shops.

Up to early afternoon there had been no disorders. An unusual number of policemen were stationed about the crowded centers however, as bread is traditionally the most important article of food in France for both rich and poor.

FORD SEEKS IRON ORE ON PENINSULA

Michigan Magnate Drills Into Territory Near Iron Mountain

By Associated Press

Iron Mountain, Mich.—Henry Ford is carrying on exploration in the Michigan peninsula west of Channing, 30 or 40 miles from this city. The first hole has reached a depth of 300 feet. From a surface outlook the territory is looked upon as a very promising one.

Much money was spent by the late John M. Longyear, millionaire mine and timber owner, in exploration work near Channing, also by the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul Railroad company and the Oliver Iron Mining company many years ago but no ore body of any importance was cut.

Experts have always contended that some day a high grade body of iron ore would be discovered in the Michigan peninsula.

Good Fire Protection Saving Money For City By Low Insurance Rate

Frame Dwellings With Shingle Roofs Command Larger Fee
Than If House Is Of Fireproof
Materials

Appleton possesses advantages in the form of insurance rates not commonly enjoyed by other Wisconsin cities. Although tax experts maintain that high taxes merely reflect the progress of a city, less visionary taxpayers of this city are at least willing to concede that what they are losing by abnormally high taxes, they are in a measure regaining by a reduced fire insurance rate.

Fire insurance rates, like taxes, also are an indication of the progressiveness of a city; but unlike taxes, the lower the fire insurance rates, the more progressive the city.

The progressiveness of a city is measured by underwriters according to certain standards depending on fire hazards and fire protection in that city.

By means of a system of rating of cities, the residents rightfully secure insurance rates adjusted according to the city's rating in the state. This system protects the insured against certain forms of exploitation, as well as placing the losses of the insurance companies on an equitable basis.

CLASSIFY CITIES

Cities are classified according to the grade of municipal fire protection, the classes ranging from 1 to 6, class 1 being a city with fire protection of the highest grade, while a class 6 town is one without hardly any organized fire protection. The personnel, organization, equipment of the fire department, the hose, fire alarm system, hydrants, water supply and facilities, police department and city ordinances all are taken into consideration.

In accordance with an order issued in July 1920 by Platt Whitman, commissioner of insurance, a rating of all fire insurance risks on the mercantile, manufacturing and public building classes is being made in the state. This rating is being conducted by the Wisconsin inspection bureau, a fire insurance ratemaking organization maintained by the insurance companies, with headquarters in Milwaukee.

There are 968 cities and villages involved in this rating program and most of the cities already have been rated. Large staffs of inspectors and rating engineers were employed in this work.

RATE LAW HERE

Appleton has a rating that is probably equaled only by Milwaukee. It is in the 2 1/2 class of cities. LaCrosse is listed in the No. 3 class while Antigo, Ashland, Beloit, Chippewa Falls, Eau Claire, Green Bay, Manitowoc, Marinette, Merrill, Rice Lake, Rhineland and Wausau are listed in the 3 1/2 class.

Previous to 1917, the condition of the fire insurance business was very unsatisfactory, due to discriminatory practices in vogue. Through competition for business and personal influence exerted, it was possible for some persons to insure for 50 and 75 per cent of the amount paid by their neighbor who owned risks with substantially the same fire hazards. A law was passed in 1917 giving the commissioner of insurance supervision over making the fire insurance rates in Wisconsin and providing that rates be non-discriminatory.

Accordingly, Appleton residents, living in a city with a 2 1/2 rating have the benefit of a lower insurance rate on all forms of property than residents of cities with lower ratings.

CONSIDER HAZARDS

The grades of fire hazards are not lost sight of. A man living in a brick house has the advantage over the one who dwells in a frame structure. The kind of roof and chimney also affects the rates.

If the insurance rate of a frame structure with a shingle roof amounts to 22 cents per $100 for one year, a reduction of four cents will be allowed for the same structure, if provided with a composition roof. An additional charge of 6 cents per $100 is made, however, if the building rests upon other than a stone or like foundation. The insured whose home is fitted with a metal smoke pipe instead of a brick chimney is penalized 25 cents additionally. So is the home owner whose walls are not plastered.

terra cotta and similar dwellings, and therefore give the owners the benefit of a reduction of 4 cents from the frame building rate, and if it has a composition roof, an additional reduction of 4 cents is granted.

MORE FOR FLATS

In the case of double dwellings or duplex flats, the risk is increased; consequently the owners are made to pay 2 cents more on any kind of building. Boarding houses housing from six to ten boarders are penalized an additional 16 cents per $100. The presence of oil burner brooders and similar hazards are frowned upon and charged for in the rates. Quantities of more than 10 gallons of gasoline stored in the house raise the rate about 25 cents.

Manufacturers and other business establishments are given credit for the installation of overhead sprinkler systems, and are charged accordingly. Thus it can be seen that the insured person is profiting by doing away with hazards and installing fire preventive apparatus. The expense is saved in the reduced rate, just as the Appleton resident has profited by moving here from another city.

By these and other means, insurance companies are taking the insured persons into co-partnership and making them proportionately responsible for any losses. That is further borne out by means of the reduced rate clauses of 90 and 80 per cent of the property valuation which makes a person bear a part of the loss and prevents him from profiting by a fire.

'FAIR HARBOR' IS READER FAVORITE

Lincoln's Story Of Old Sea Captain Most Sought At Library For Week

"Fair Harbor" by Joseph C. Lincoln has been one of the books in greatest demand at Appleton public library for this last week. Lovable and laughable characters in a succession of amusing incidents go to make this Mr. Lincoln's best book and from the enthusiasm with which the story has been accepted in other places as well as Appleton it is undoubtedly headed for the biggest demand yet of a Joseph C. Lincoln book.

In "Fair Harbor" Captain Sears Kendrick returns to his home town, his savings wiped out by unfortunate investments, and with a leg broken in a railway wreck. At home a job is offered him which after much hesitation he accepts and which involves him in a hilarious course of events.

For Cap'n Kendrick becomes the manager of Fair Harbor, a home for mariner's women, the wives, sisters and daughters of followers of the sea.

The situation is one of rich humorous possibilities and under Mr. Lincoln's skillful hands becomes a cause for chuckling and irresistible laughter. An old sea dog, kind, gruff, earnest and most human of souls is set down as director of a group of cantankerous women, quaint, humorous and gossip characters. The sign of the Home reads: "Without the stormy winds increase, within the harbor all is peace." That Cap'n Kendrick found peace at Fair Harbor cannot be said to be the case but that some romance was lurking within its walls is one of the pleasantest facts of the novel.

Two other novels which stand out as being among the most popular are "Babbitt" by Lewis and "One of Ours" by Cather. Both the stories have been in great demand for the last four weeks.

"Etiquette" by Post takes the lead again this week as the most popular non-fiction book among Appleton readers but "Principles of Interior Decoration" by Jakway is in nearly as great a demand. All books on interior decorating have been unusually popular this fall but this book by Jakway is one of the newer books and exceptionally interesting.

A Stubborn Cough
Loosens Right Up

This home-made remedy is a wonder for quick results. Ready and cheaply made.

Here is a home-made syrup which millions of people have found to be the most dependable means of breaking up stubborn coughs. It is cheap and simple, but very prompt in action. Under its healing, soothing influence, chest soreness goes, phlegm loosens, breathing becomes easier, tickling in throat stops and you get a good night's restful sleep. The usual throat and chest colds are conquered by it in 24 hours or less. Nothing better for bronchitis, hoarseness, croup, throat tickle, bronchial asthma or winter coughs.

To make this splendid cough syrup, pour 2 1/2 ounces of Pinex into a pint bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup and shake thoroughly. If you prefer use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup. Either way, you get a full pint—a family supply—of much better cough syrup than you could buy ready-made for three times the money. Keeps perfectly and children love its pleasant taste.

Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, known the world over for its prompt healing effect upon the membranes.

To avoid disappointment ask your druggist for "2 1/2 ounces of Pinex" with full directions, and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

WHERE IS OUR MORAL SENSE AS A NATION?

As this is being written 250,000 Christians are fleeing in terror from Anatolia toward the Black sea in a desperate attempt to save their lives from the bloody hand of the returning Turk. This host of a quarter of a million men, women and children, with their few belongings tied up in shawls is making its way despairingly over the snow-clad hills and valleys of Asia Minor. Whole Christian communities are migrating and appeals from land to "save our souls," according to Associated Press dispatches, are received almost hourly at the American radio station in Constantinople, whence they are transmitted from the flotilla of our destroyers patrolling the Mediterranean and Black sea coasts. In the mad rush little children are being dragged hungry and frightened to an unknown fate. Mothers are struggling along with babes in their arms. Hundreds, doubtless thousands, of these refugees will perish from starvation and cold before they reach a refuge. They may be overtaken and massacred. It is a picture of colossal desolation and woe. It is a picture that ought to wring from the world its sympathy and its wrath, and above all, its assistance.

Yet the truth is that not a hand in all the civilized world is being raised to save this helpless and panic-stricken horde of Christian human beings. Great Britain has a large fleet of warships in the vicinity and the United States itself has warships at the scene, as they both did when Smyrna was burned and the recent butchery of Christians occurred. Neither intervened then and neither is intervening now.

The state department has a vigilance committee at Lausanne to see that in the re-writing of the peace treaty with Turkey our "interests in Mesopotamian and Baikan oil deposits are not impaired and that we have equal privilege with the other powers to exploit this great storehouse of natural resources and commerce. But it has no concern about what is done with or to the Christian minorities restored to the tender mercies of the Turk. It can see oil but it cannot see human beings.

We wonder what has become of our vaunted civilization, what has become of international morality, what has become of America's ideals and humanness when we stand by and see crime-like these perpetrated in the Near East before our very eyes and do nothing.

The United States not many years ago warned Russia against the persecution and massacre of Jews. In the years gone by it has made known its displeasure to Turkey at similar outrages. But we seem to have lost this attitude. Because Great Britain, France or other European powers who are up to their necks in political and economic controversies fail to recognize their Christian obligations to these peoples is no reason why the United States of America should shun its responsibilities.

The United States is the supreme moral and military power of the world. It can command the Turks to stop barbarism and if it did Turkey would hesitate before renegeing in these monstrousities. It could enforce its decree in ways that would be effective. It could withhold recognition of the Turkish government and it could if need be in the last extremity join hands with the other civilized powers of the world, who without question would be glad to come under our leadership, and command the Turks to desist at the point of the sword.

Well may that group of distinguished Americans ask the question that was put to the United States senate this week, whether the foreign policy of the United States is measured primarily in terms of material or of human values. No nation, no government, can look the world in the face which has the power to stop these atrocities and does not act. And this obligation falls with greater force upon the United States than upon any other nation for the simple reason that it can of itself alone put a restraining hand upon the "unspeakable Turk."

ADVENT

Advent, the joyous season of the Christian year, begins on Sunday, December 3. The four Sundays of its duration are supposed, in popular belief, to symbolize the 4000 years of the world's history before the birth of Christ, after the Jewish tradition.

But it is to the event itself, or rather the anniversary of it, that all Christendom now begins looking forward. Not only are church-affairs in December, outwardly the bleakest of months, a time for rejoicing, but the influence of the gentle Christmas story has spread into the realms where the name of Christ is never taken save in vain. And the wicked do good at this season without realizing the cause of their well-doing.

Advent Sunday is the beginning of the church year. In the Near East this is a solemn time, for Advent is a second Lent, and is attended by general fasting. How much pleasanter is the Christian custom. The ruddy cheeks and bright eyes, the tinsel and ornament of show windows and toy displays, the occasional exciting hint of Santa Claus and mysterious surprises in store for all, give a moment's reflection. How happy America is, in Advent, 1922, when compared to all the other countries of the world.

AN EXCELLENT APPOINTMENT

Governor Groesbeck of Michigan made an altogether commendable appointment to the vacancy in the United States senatorship caused by the resignation of Truman H. Newberry when he selected Mayor James H. Couzens of Detroit. Mr. Couzens is a man who has been conspicuous in the industrial, commercial and public life of Michigan. He has been a constructive figure in all of these fields and he has rendered distinctive service to the people of Detroit.

Probably Detroit has never had a mayor who gave it a cleaner, more efficient and more progressive administration than has the former automobile manufacturer, for Mr. Couzens first came into prominence as one of the leading factors in the great Ford enterprise. Mr. Couzens has given Detroit a singularly competent police force. He has been the uncompromising enemy of vice and graft, and yet he has treated these serious problems without the reactions that too often come from reform methods. Probably Detroit has the best control of street traffic of any city in America, and its financial and executive management has reached a very high state, indeed.

Shortly after Mr. Couzens left the Ford organization he became interested in public affairs. He had accumulated a large fortune, so that he was independent of all influences that might exercise themselves ordinarily in the government of a great municipality like Detroit. Mr. Couzens transferred his business genius from private undertaking to public service. He became the champion of the people in their generation-long struggle to secure better transportation. With the result that he has brought to successful culmination the effort to put the street railways of the city under municipal ownership and operation. Detroit is said to be the largest city of the world where a public utility of this kind is exclusively in the hands of the city.

Mr. Couzens is a progressive. He is a progressive in politics and in business. A remarkable testimonial not only to his progressiveness, but to his integrity and his sympathetic attitude toward the people and their problems, is shown in the fact that although he is many times a millionaire he has retained the confidence and support of the laboring element of Detroit, an element which, by the way, is very large numerically. He should be a genuine asset to the ever-growing progressive wing in the senate, and he will be a fitting colleague of Woodridge N. Ferris, the Democrat progressive recently elected from that state. Mr. Couzens will give Michigan capable representation. If anything can save the Harding administration he will be one of the factors that will help do it. He is of the type of which we need more in all spheres of public service and particularly at Washington. He is a sterling American, so sterling in fact that he had the good judgment and the courage to refuse to receive that dubious American, Mayor Thompson of Chicago, when the latter went to Detroit to attend the recent aviation meet. Michigan indeed is fortunate ate in the change which has come about in its representation at Washington in the last few weeks.

THE CRY OF BLOOD

Anemia or weakness of the blood (a diminished number of red corpuscles or a diminished proportion of hemoglobin in the blood) is one of the most common symptoms physicians deal with. It occurs as a result of many, many kinds of poisoning: sometimes ordinary poisons absorbed or taken into the body in one way or another, as lead in numerous industries, carbon monoxide, carbon dioxide, the aniline and coal tar derivatives; sometimes by poisons produced in the body by such diseases as tuberculosis, syphilis, or focal infections; sometimes by poisons ingested inadvisedly as medicine for headache, neuralgia, rheumatism, nervousness, etc. In short, to attempt to list the common causes of anemia is quite beyond the space available here. I have tried it many times, and I know it can't be done.

But this I can say here, that it is extremely doubtful whether any instance of anemia in an individual not denied reasonable choice of food is ever attributable to lack of iron or remediable by any form of medicine containing iron or, by any kind of diet however rich in iron. I mean to say that aside from ancient and now exploded theories of the formation or development or manufacture of blood and the relation thereto of iron, we haven't the slightest evidence to support the idea that iron, however administered, ever cures anemia. And I doubt whether any physician reputed to have cured anemia has depended upon the use of iron as a medicine or a diet rich in iron as the sole treatment of his patient.

In order to cure anemia it is obviously necessary to stop the poisoning which is responsible for it, and that is something which neither medicinal nor food iron may be expected to do. To be sure, accidentally or incidentally the source of the poisoning may be removed or remedied while a patient is taking iron in medicine or food, but not because he is taking the iron. Thus, one may begin to spend more time out in the sunlight, while taking or eating iron, and sunlight not only stimulates the manufacture of new blood but is a great cure for, say, unrecognized tuberculosis. So that, we might say that certain tuberculosis individuals who know they are anemic but do not know they have tuberculosis may obtain a cure of their anemia by taking a shingle nail in the mouth and walking five miles in the open air each afternoon, or driving some iron nails in the brogans and in teasing a pill around the pasture with a shiny stick every day.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Blindness and Deafness

Does excessive smoking affect the eyesight or hearing?—(M. C. G.)

Answer—Loss or impairment of eyesight is a common result of tobacco poisoning. Deafness and head noises are often due to tobacco.

Gaining Weight

I have been advising my brother, who is 6 feet tall and weighs only 156 pounds, to join a gymnasium and exercise at least two or three times a week in order to gain weight. But he believes plenty of rest and a large amount of wholesome food would be the only way he can put on more weight. Will you kindly give us your opinion?—(W. A. M.)

Answer—Several thousand young men selected for military training and made to take unwonted exercise every day, gained an average of 12 or 15 pounds in weight the first three months in camp. This represented new muscle tissue which perhaps replaces slacker flesh in some cases. The first thing for your brother to do is to find out whether there is any latent or insidious underlying disease condition responsible for his defective nutrition. The only way he can do that is by undergoing a complete physical examination by his physician.

Baby Stuff

1. My sister's children, living in the other side of a double house with me, have the whooping cough. How long will it be necessary to keep my baby apart from them? 2. Until what age should a baby be given a daily bath? 3. Should scraped beef be fed raw or boiled to a baby 18 months old? 4. Would you advise inoculating a baby of that age against diphtheria?—(R. C. E.)

Answer—1. Thirty days. 2. Until he can bathe himself; daily bathing is necessary at least as long as the baby lacks control of the emunctories. 3. Never raw meat; always cooked. 4. The younger the child, the more essential is it, in my judgment, that he be tested with the Schick test, and, if found susceptible to diphtheria, immunized with the toxin-antitoxin.

Cancer Is Not Uter

1. Can cancer of the stomach be positively determined by means of X-ray plates? 2. Are the symptoms of cancer of the stomach as symptoms of ulcer of the stomach?—(G. L. M.)

Answer—Only rarely by X-ray evidence alone. 2. No. But one who has had stomach ulcer (gastric ulcer) in earlier years is the more likely to have cancer of the stomach after 40.

Daily Editorial Digest

(Title Reg. U. S. Patent Office)
A Resume of American Newspapers' Opinion.

PROGRESSIVE CONFERENCE AS IT AFFECTS NEW PARTY SUGGESTIONS

The suggested formation, as a result of the "progressive conference" called by Senator LaFollette, of a new political party—a suggestion by the way which was characterized as improper by the Wisconsin Senator himself—has been the subject of extended editorial discussion. There is general agreement among editors that a strong leader of the Roosevelt type easily could start such a movement but no such figure is in sight they say. The LaFollette conference generally is considered as an "opportunistic movement" which is not expected to do more than initiate a progressive program of legislation to be attempted in the next Congress.

The Wisconsin solon "knows where the center of the stage is" and "is never backward in appropriating it," says the New York TRIBUNE, (Rep.), which also characterizes him as "the senior statesman around Washington in the business of being in a third party and yet not being in it." He is now a Republican only because he writes his own definition of Republicanism. In a third party "Battling Bob" would undoubtedly have to accept the claims of discipline and responsibility. As well think of caging the skylark as of imprisoning him in so deadly an association." In effect that also is the view of the New York TIMES, (Ind. Dem.), which further expresses the belief that LaFollette "has embarked upon a campaign of political intimidation. He hopes to terrorize the Republican Party into submitting to his dictation, in the matter both of legislation by Congress and of candidates for 1924."

There is no denying that the "progressive" movement is a law that reaches all animal life as well. Neither with men nor animals does the newly born offspring make any strong impression upon the male. Whereas with the normal female, in most cases, she is ready to give up her life for an offspring that is not even of sufficient age to appeal to her on account of affection.

MATERNAL INSTINCT STRONG
It is then quite beyond question, that the strength of the maternal instinct is fundamental to the preservation of the species. All normal life, and most abnormalities relating to sex is based upon this primal feeling.

With a woman, her relations to man, whether conscious or unconscious, means the preservation of the species, and the love of the man is really the love of the child born or unborn. To most women this is almost all of life. No other instincts, interests, feelings or customs stand against it.

When it is interrupted, either directly through the child or indirectly through the male, it means to her an interruption of life. It means that the fundamental law of being is raised in protest. Laws, customs, institutions, and even common kindness are of no effect to control conduct.

EQUALITY IMPOSSIBLE
For these reasons equality of justice between the sexes is impossible. If men and women could be judged alike, it would ultimately mean the extinction of the human race. Human laws and human customs cannot undo the innate feelings and instincts which are the basis of life.

If human institutions could be evolved where complete justice would be meted out to all, then every person would be judged not only according to his actions, but according to the physical and mental makeup of his machine, and according to full considerations of time and place. If this were done, probably no one would condemn another. There are very few women who commit murder for who could be deterred from it, or in any way influenced, no matter what the consequences might be.

A general crusade, or a general feeling in favor of visiting severe penalties upon women who slay, would result in sorrow, disgrace and misery to thousands of women and their families without in any way changing the conditions of life.

Not only is it unscientific and cruel to judge men and women alike, but it is really unjust to judge any two human beings alike, and the safest way is not to judge at all.

While the "inevitable conflict" between the conservative and progressive wings of the Republican party for control between now and 1924 might precipitate a new party, the NEWARK NEWS, (Ind.), is convinced that "it is almost to be risked on this great hazard of the party." Kill Race To Judge Men And Women Alike

BY CLARENCE DARROW
Famous Defense Attorney

Chicago—It is idle to talk about judging men and women alike. Nature does not do it. Men cannot do it.

For hundreds of years, in what are called the civilized nations of the world, women have been looked upon somewhat as children.

A feeling of what is called chivalry has grown up as a consequence of this attitude. Men are taught that they must give women many courtesies and considerations which men do not get to each other.

Every one with common experience knows that in every way, the law has been both made and administered to give women privileges which men could never claim. If a man kills his wife he is almost sure to hang. But a wife can kill her husband and run little risk of punishment.

If a man strikes his wife, he is a brute and no sentence is too severe. But let a woman strike her husband, or nag him, or make his life unbearable, and the public applauds her conduct and says he deserves it.

SEX AS CAUSE
Most all murders committed by women grow out of sex relations, whether in the family or outside. Is there any biological reason for this, or would the indiscriminate hanging of women restore equality and prevent this class of murders?

Nature seems interested mainly in the preservation of life, and in its preservation women are the most important. Both as to the bearing and rearing of children, women necessarily take the responsibility and must take it.

This is not only true of human life, but it is a law that reaches all animal life as well.

Neither with men nor animals does the newly born offspring make any strong impression upon the male. Whereas with the normal female, in most cases, she is ready to give up her life for an offspring that is not even of sufficient age to appeal to her on account of affection.

ARMENIA AND TREATY REVISION

Paris—Gustave Herve, editor of the VICTOIRE, explains how the Armenians will suffer from the revision of the treaty of Sevres. He says:

"The revision of the Sevres Treaty will greatly affect a people whose evil star has placed them in the most mountainous part of Asia Minor, in the mountains of Armenia. At the source of the rivers Tigris and Euphrates which flow into the plains of Mesopotamia. Unfortunately the Armenians are not alone there; while this industrious, thrifty and business like race occupy the towns and villages of the valleys and have been strongly attached to Christianity for 19 centuries, they are surrounded by Muslim mountain tribes, the Kurds, who are much less civilized than themselves, but who because they are Muslims enjoy every leniency on the part of the Turkish authorities, including the right to massacre the 'roumis'."

"The Armenians are hated, in the first place because they are Christians, secondly because they are more civilized, and richer than the inhabitants of the neighboring mountains, and thirdly perhaps they have lost, as a result of long oppression, those military qualities which all the Levantine peoples, the Greeks, Jews, Syrians, Armenians seem to be devoid of, although they have so much talent for business."

"Massacred at the least pretext during the twenty years previous to the war, the Armenians of Turkey believed that, as the Allies went into the war to defend the rights of peoples, their victory would mean for them the end of servitude. And when the Russian armies approached their mountains, the most courageous of the Armenians revolted against Turkish domination. It can easily be imagined how these unfortunate Armenians were massacred and deported in crowds, after this revolt against their persecutors when the Russian armies ceased to advance and later when they collapsed under the influence of Bolshevism."

"They did not despair however, Russia had crumbled to pieces, but the other allies were victorious and imposed the treaty of Sevres on their Turkish persecutors. The Armenian provinces were to be ceded to them, Constantinople and put under the mandate of a great civilized nation. 'Alas! the American Republic refused to take them under its wing. 'No other great European nation felt strong enough to take charge of them, as the Armenian mountains are so different of access, far from the sea, and from the help of the great Western nations."

"There was a little corner of the earth, however, quite near the sea where many Armenians had settled, but where they were unfortunately also surrounded by a larger number of Turks; this was Cilicia, to the north of Alexanderelle, on the border of Syria. The Armenians thought we should have taken Cilicia under our mandate and that they would have there a national home, under the shelter of the French flag, like the Zionist Jews are trying to fix in Palestine under the British flag. But this was beyond the strength of France exhausted as she is by her terrible effort, and in order to hasten the conclusion of peace with Turkey, the Armenians of Cilicia were sacrificed in their turn; the agreement of Angora, signed by M. Franklin-Bouillon led to the evacuation of Cilicia by our troops, not without some guarantees obtained by the Armenians of the province."

Pupils Out Monday For Seal Orders

People Are Asked To Encourage Juvenile Venders Of Stamps

School children of Appleton will start their yearly sale of Christmas seals of the Anti-tuberculosis association on Monday. The sale last year was greatly increased by the work done by the children and the enthusiasm with which the youngsters seem to be starting this year promises still better results. The health department of Appleton Womans club has charge of the campaign which started Friday and continues until Christmas.

A prize of five dollars will go to the child selling the most seals and four three dollars will be the other prizes. Committee members say that although the children pester you to death when you already are fully supplied with seals just encourage and compliment them for their enthusiasm. They are helping the campaign not only in Appleton but in the national movement to overcome tuberculosis.

Clothing which is warm and practical is the first thing to be sought but any articles that can be used in any way whatsoever will be taken gladly by the cabinet.

I cannot praise your Vegetable Compound enough and highly recommend it to those who have troubles like mine. I am willing for these facts to be used as a testimonial to lead all who suffer with female troubles, as I did, to the right road to health."—Mrs. LULA VANN, Box 43, Fulton, Arkansas.

KAUKAUNA LINES UP FOR SEAL SALE

Hope To Break All Records—Half Of Money Will Be Used At Home

Kaukauna—The annual Christmas seal campaign in Kaukauna is under way. Plans for the great drive were made Friday at a meeting of the health committee of Kaukauna Women's club, under whose supervision the annual sale is held. The seals will be placed in the schools for the children and special efforts will be made to exceed all previous sale of stamps.

One half of the money received will be turned over to the Wisconsin Anti-Tuberculosis association, but the remainder will be used in this city to advance the health movements started by the health committee of the Women's club. The free dental clinic and milk lunches in schools require some of the money.

The stamps will be distributed to school children next week. Dr. C. D. Boyd is expected to speak in the schools. It is probable others will assist in the task.

All Business Recovered Except Retailer; His Turn Coming Now, Babson Says

Trends Have Sequence in Four Main Commercial Groups And Take Identical Trend Through
Country Each Time

Wellesley Hills, Mass. — Roger W. Babson Saturday called attention to a very important fact in discussing the general industrial revival.

"Depressions hit the country very much like storms," says Mr. Babson, and just as they affect different localities of the country in regular sequence they also affect the different divisions of our business world in different degrees and at different times. "The fact that a depression ordinarily starts in the northeast, south and west, finishing its course in California, is clearly evident from a statistical study of the situation. If we look at the business world we find it dividing itself into four big divisions and we find that the business depression traces its regular course through this industrial fabric.

DEFINES GROUPS
"First, there is the raw material groups, or iron and steel companies, copper and oils, crop and livestock producers. Second, there is the transportation group, the railroads and steamships. Third, there is the manufacturing group with its automobile factories, textile mills and the other fabricators of finished products. Fourth, and finally there is the distribution group headed by the wholesale houses, mail order firms, chain stores and finishing with the multitudes of retail establishments.

"Now what happens to these big four groups when a business depression hits the country? The first to suffer is the manufacturing group. This is partly the result of financial stringency. Take the recent depression; it appeared first among the shoe factories, textile mills, and other factories. In a broad way these are concentrated in the northeast section of the country. It is what happened in this region that trouble first appeared. This was entirely characteristic. It is what happened also in earlier periods of business depression. Farsighted executives foresaw long in advance, that this would be the first part of the country to weaken, be-are looking better as the raw material group begin to struggle to their feet. The surplus has changed to a shortage, reflecting and measuring the revival of the transportation group.

ON LAST LAP

"But the final stage is still before us. We have yet to witness full resumption among the great rank and file of retailers who constitute the final group of the big four, the trading group.

"Therefore, I estimate that improvement is not yet general and that the best is yet to come, when all the big four groups shall participate in prosperity. Those who apprehend that the bull movement in the stock market is at an end, might well question whether recovery can in any sense be complete with the enormous distributing group still to be heard from.

"It is true, of course, that the stocks of the so-called trading corporations show a substantial advance. This is partly because the stock market discounts the successive steps in business revival. But a more important reason is that the trading corporations, so-called, with their immense national ramifications tend to part company with the smaller individual retailer and move more in harmony with the other groups.

"If you are a retailer, don't get discouraged if your sales seem to lag behind general business. This is merely the working out of economic laws. Your turn will come—and he who laughs last sometimes laughs best. If you are an inventor, I suggest that the bull market—so far as the long swing is concerned will not finally culminate until improvement is general. Improvement cannot be general until shared by the millions of big and lit-

'TOMORROW' IS ADDING ADMIRERS

Four Records Vie For Popularity in Week's Sales At Phonograph Shops

Four records vie for popularity for the week just ending, one would judge from a survey of local music dealers on Friday. They are "Three O'clock in the Morning," "Tomorrow," "Carolina in the Morning" and "All Over Nothing at All." "Tomorrow" has been the least popular of them all heretofore but for the last three weeks has slowly worked its way into demand.

The five most popular selections in each kind of record are:
Victor: Three O'clock in the Morning, Nellie Kelly I Love You, Call Me Back Pal O'Mine, Evening Chimes, Silent Night.

Columbia: Toot, Toot, Tootsie; Tomorrow, Homesick, Sextette from Lucia di Lammermoor, Irish Love Song, Edison: Loves Symphony, Are You Playing Fair, In An Old Fashioned Town, Eleanor, If a Picture I Could Paint.

Yoke Of Oxen Is Only Survival Of Early Days

The only yoke of oxen in this part of the state so far as known is owned by two sons of August Drews of the town of Winchester, who raised and trained them. They are brown Swiss five years-olds and are so evenly matched it is almost impossible to tell them apart. The weight of each is approximately 1,400 pounds. The oxen have always been accorded gentle treatment and are the most popular pets on the farm. They are used daily in doing all kinds of farm work, taking the place of both horses and tractors.

Triumphs of M. Jonquille

by MELVILLE DAVISSON POST
© 1922 NEA Service Inc.

Suddenly, as once before on this morning, Lord Valleys, who had been seated the instant before, was now, with no motion that seemed visible to the eye, standing on his feet. He came forward, took the paper which Monsieur Jonquille held in his hand, and going over to the table, unfolded it and stooped over it. He was some time in an inspection of the document, and in the meantime Monsieur Jonquille had made a gesture, as one flicking the ashes from a cigarette through the open window in the Bois de Boulogne. The two young men in their animated discussion, instead of crossing the street and entering the house.

Presently Lord Valleys rose from his stooped posture. He was shaken with astonishment, but there was of this astonishment no visible element either in his appearance or in his voice.

"Monsieur," he said, "this is a deed drawn by an English solicitor, conveying all of Lord Winton's estates in England to his grand daughter, Barbara Westridge. Why, Monsieur, should I convey these estates to this American girl? These estates have descended to me by inheritance. One does not alienate his lands without a cause."

"I will suggest a reason," replied Monsieur Jonquille. "This is in accordance with Lord Winton's promise. You stand now in Lord Winton's stead, and as I have said, you have received his benefits, and you should assume his obligations."

Lord Valleys smiled—that vague smile which seemed not to disturb the features of his face. He folded the deed together in his hand.

"You must permit me to decline, monsieur," he said.

He paused a moment, and the background of his face hardened.

"And you must overlook it, monsieur," he said, "if I see that your whole suspicion with respect to this matter is not convincing. This girl could not have assassinated Lord Winton."

"She could not," replied Monsieur Jonquille. "Lord Winton was killed by some powerful assassin who seized him, compressed his body and drove in the knife."

He turned now toward Lord Valleys, his face firm.

"Monsieur," he said, "will you carry out the obligation of Lord Winton and leave the matter of his assassin a mystery, or will you refuse it and have that mystery solved?"

The man at the table looked strangely at Monsieur Jonquille. He had the aspect of a creature of great strength, concerned always with concealing it. He was puzzled and disturbed, but his color did not change.

"You know, then, the assassin of Lord Winton?"

"No," replied the Prefect. "Shall I name him to you?"

The man made again the vague gesture with his white, steel fingers.

"You may keep the secret of the name, monsieur," he replied, "if you will be kind enough to tell me the thing that indicated to you the name."

"With pleasure," replied Monsieur Jonquille. "You have said that the English criminal courts are stupid, and I have concurred in that opinion. Observe, monsieur, the evidence of that stupidity. This criminal court could not understand how a knife-blade four inches long could inflict a direct wound seven inches deep."

These measured the knife-blade and the wound, these English blades and wrote it down impossible.

But you, monsieur, who are Flay, and I who am Latin, would hardly arrive at this conclusion. For we would reflect that a knife-blade four inches long, driven into the soft tissues of the body compressed together by the impact of a powerful blow might easily leave a wound measuring seven inches in length behind it—when that compression was released and the tissues relaxed. It is a fact, monsieur, that the Service de la Surete has frequently demonstrated."

The man at the table was motionless, as in some indecision. He did not change. He remained only in a sort of dreadful immobility to consider some desperate hazard. He was awakened by the two young men from the Bois de Boulogne, who now entered the drawing room.

"Monsieur," said the voice of the Prefect of Police, "I feared that I might not be your equal in all directions, and that I have asked these two agents of the Service to come up. They will also be useful as witnesses to the indenture."

Lord Valleys made no reply. He opened a drawer of the table, took out a pen and attached his signature to the deed—waited until the witnesses had signed it, blotted it carefully and folding it together, handed it to the Prefect of Police.

"I purchase immunity," he said, "from a second trial before the English criminal court."

Monsieur Jonquille received the indenture and put it into his pocket. He took up his gloves, his hat, his stick; then he smiled.

"You purchased, monsieur," he said, "a thing that you already possess. It is the law of England that one who has been acquitted of a crime cannot again be tried in her courts for it."

Another triumph of M. Jonquille. "The Laughter of Allah," will begin in our next issue.

Monsieur Jonquille, the Prefect of Police of Paris, told me this story. We were on the deck of his yacht in the Mediterranean; the coast of Africa was in the distance. We had been talking of that strange famous Englishman whose tragic death in the North Sea had stirred the world.

Nothing had he never married—the greatest Englishman of his time? We did not name him. Monsieur Jonquille called him "Sir Henry" in the story.

The Prefect of Police of Paris presented the story as though it were a detached tale of an ancient story teller in a bazaar of Cairo. And I listened with my eyes closed, on the roof deck, moved slowly by the long swells.

I listened to the tragic love story of this strange, reserved famous Englishman who had lived in mystery and died in mystery.

The man who, rode north from the city, along the Boulevard Mohammed Ali, was no longer young. He sat firmly in the saddle, and to the distant eye, he was hard and lean like a hunter in condition, but his face discolored by wind and sun, in repose, was tired. It was an unusual face, seamed and creased with lines, the mouth firm, almost harsh, with the muscles developed along the jaw. But it was not these features that impressed one.

It was the man's extraordinary eyes. They were large and set far apart. The color was immediately seen—a dark metallic blue—the blue of certain remote spaces in the tropic sky. The lids drooped, giving the man an expression at once of serenity and menace.

He rode a gray Arab, and his clothes were evidently the best product of a Bond Street tailor. He rode like a soldier—like one accustomed to live days and nights in the saddle.

The man felt old and tired. The vast, eternal unchanging aspect of Egypt oppressed him. Here all human effort seemed equally futile. Here, as in India, he grew only old and accomplished nothing.

And, on this evening, he felt acutely the menace of Egypt.

England had only extended fingers on this great desert running south into impenetrable mystery. She had only the peace of the bayonet, and behind the indolence, the listless resignation of these desert peoples, there seemed to be a vast, inherent hatred of the invader that never lessened, and that waited always with an unfailing patience. In India, this thing skulked in the distance, but here it seemed to approach—to be at hand.

Perhaps what the man knew staged this impression. The whole world of Islam was uneasy. She had been despoiled in Turkey and shamed. She felt that weak rulers, for gain or the sake of life, had held her in leash when she ought to have been loosed with a great shout to a holy war. The heads of Islam were quiet, but the tribes were restless.

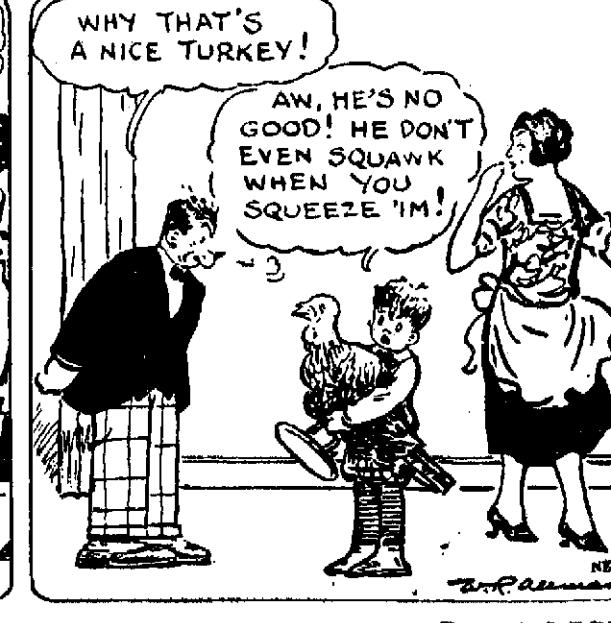

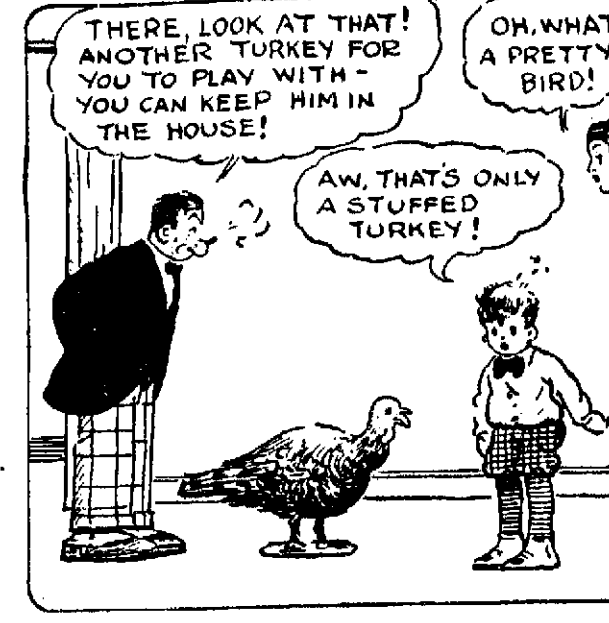

England, feeling always with her delicate antennae, knew this and, always wise, moved first. She had withdrawn this man from India and sent him here to set the butt of the Lee-Enfield a little firmer in the sand south toward Khartum.

He had a fortnight in Cairo before he took up this tremendous labor, and he used it to be free to be alone to ride when he liked without an orderly always at his heels.

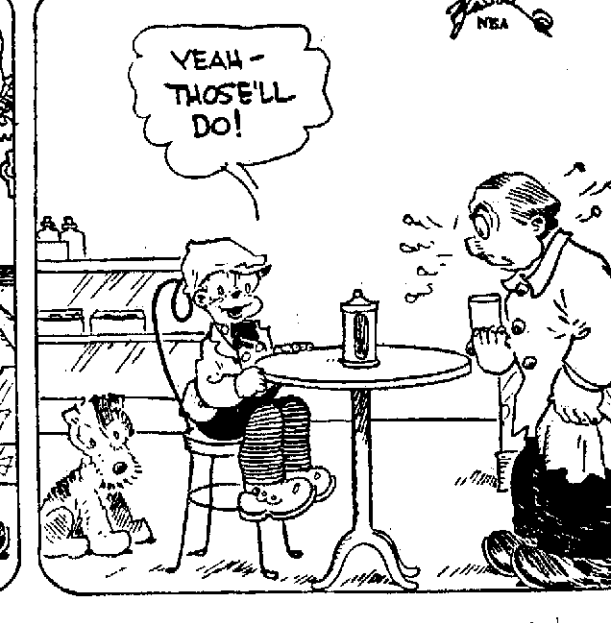

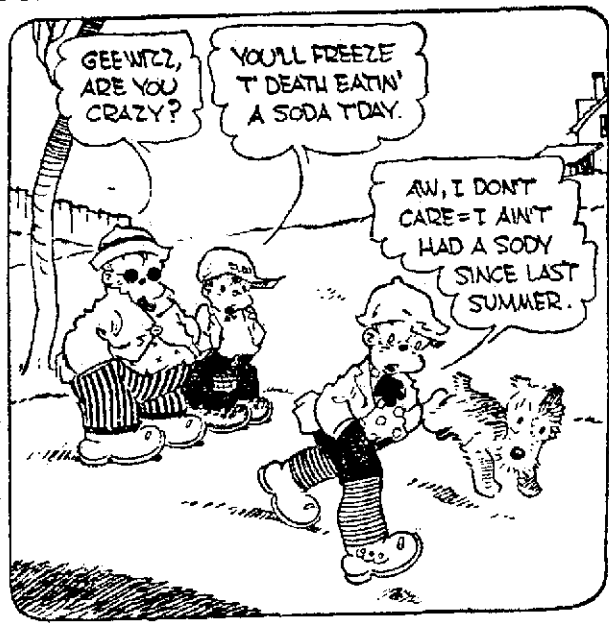

It was great honor that England did him. He might, in the end, become Viceroy of India or Sirdar of Egypt. But on this evening he was impressed with the value of what he paid—his youth had been required of him. When he should come up out of this desert he would be old. And what had he got what would he get out of these great honors?

Appleton 3-Cushion Billiard Artists To Meet Green Bay Men

Dr. E. W. Douglas and Eugene Carr of this city matched with L. J. Engles and Harry Flint, Green Bay—First Block Dec. 6

Dr. E. W. Douglas and Eugene Carr of this city will play L. J. Engles and Harry Flint of Green Bay 150 points continuous three cushion billiards to consist of three games of 50 points each, beginning Dec. 6 for the state's sectional honor.

The first block will be played in the Carr and Hansen billiard room at 8:30 Wednesday evening. The second block of 50 points will be played at the Elks club in Green Bay. The third and deciding game will be played in the room decided by the team having the largest number of points at the end of the second block.

WELL KNOWN PLAYERS
Dr. Douglas does not need much introduction to billiard fans nor does Mr. Carr. Dr. Douglas participated in numerous 14-2 state amateur championship billiard tournaments in Milwaukee where he is also well known in billiard circles, and succeeded in playing for the title in two consecutive years.

Mr. Carr is a member of the firm of Carr and Hansen, former state amateur ball line champion and a billiard room owner for 30 years.

Mr. Engles is a 3-cushion expert of Green Bay, has participated in numerous state matches and finished second in the Chicago open 3-cushion tournament.

Mr. Harry Flint is not known in this city other than the fact that he is a 3-cushion expert.

With this array of talent, all of the series promise to be interesting at least and a large audience will no doubt witness it.

YE FISHING AND HUNTING COLUMN

By M. J. V. Fose

Sturgeon Bay—The state fish hatchery here will be closed in a few days and the 20,000,000 spawn will be taken to hatcheries at Sheboygan and Bayfield, the rest to be placed in the waters of Lake Michigan as a result of the warmth of the water here, which is from 10 to 15 degrees too warm for hatching purposes. The eggs brought into the local hatchery are nearly all hatched whereas under ordinary conditions they would not mature until Jan. 15.

Ashland—According to complete reports announced by County Clerk Quisthoff, 2,126 hunting licenses were issued in Ashland county during the last year. Most of these licenses also held a deer tag attached but a very large percentage of hunters were disappointed as the deer were very scarce. Experienced hunters estimate that 130 deer were killed in Ashland county.

Ed St. Clair, game inspector for northern Illinois recently planted some "supposedly silver trout" in several lakes of Illinois and later it was found that the supposed silver trout were nothing more than sockeyes, or blue-backed salmon, which had become landlocked in some Washington lakes and out there are called redfish or graylings.

The state of Washington has made experiments with these "silver trout" or redfish and which are of interest to the angling fraternity. They have found that some fish from parents or 8 or 9 inches in length grow to 4 1/2 pound fish when planted in lakes 300 or 400 miles from where the eggs were taken.

Mr. Jordan, the fish expert, says there are two forms of this salmon or redfish. One attains a size of three to seven pounds, while the other, known as the little redfish, or Kennerly's salmon does not get much larger than 10 or 12 inches. It has been definitely proved that the large redfish and the sockeye are identical, and it is thought that the small ones are the young sockeye.

Taken as a whole they are not trout but "fightin' salmon" with lots of pep and scrap to them. They say out west that the best months for catching these beauties are July and August and, these two months are about the poorest fishing months on the calendar. Probably Wisconsin will experiment with some of these fry in the near future.

LITTLE CHICAGO TO OPEN CAGING SEASON

Little Chicago—A formal opening of the basketball season for this vicinity will take place at 8:15 Sunday evening, Dec. 10, at Little Chicago. The Darby team is using the floor and will have for its opponents on that evening a strong lineup from Neenah known as the Island Paper team. George Herman and Andrew Spragg, John Van Treck and Herman Van Vorst are on the team. Another game between ten players from here with open with a fast game as a curtain raiser.

Carnival Dance at Maple View Pavilion, Sunday, Dec. 3. "Charley" is all set for more fun. Mellorimba Orchestra playing. Busses leave Pettibone's at 8 and 9 o'clock.

FONDY CARDS WILL PLAY 50 CAGE GAMES

Big Schedule Is Arranged For Crack Aggregation Of Professionals

Fond du Lac—The Fond du Lac Cardinals, claimants of the professional basketball championship of Wisconsin last season have embarked on a fifty game schedule for the coming season, the crack Mathewsons of Sheboygan being the first victims, the Cards defeating the Chair City team 28 to 18.

The Cards will play all of their home games in the armory after traveling for a number of years in the Coliseum building. The Coliseum this season will be the scene of high school and junior high school games. Max Gedlinski, former Ripon star and leader of the A. A. U. world champion New London Edisons for two years, is manager and coach of the Cardinal squad. Gedlinski has with him this season Merritt Gustin, former Ripon star and Adrian, and Wilson of this city.

The team will play at home every Saturday night and Sunday afternoon while one or more games away from home will be on the week-end. The first big alien contest will be with the first Beloit Fairies at Beloit on Dec. 8. Last year an invasion of Beloit the Cardinals swamped the Fairies under a 39 to 9 score.

Fond du Lac is literally basketball crazy. The city boasts of six big basketball arenas, two of which are among the largest in the state. The high school team won the state championship last season at Madison, while the Vocational school team went through the season without a defeat.

BEAR CREEK LOSES HARD BASKET TILT

Mullarkey, guard, started for Bear Creek. Other Bear Creek players were: Schoonke, center; Prunty, guard; Armstrong, and Heinke forwards. No subs were used.

Wins a Welcome

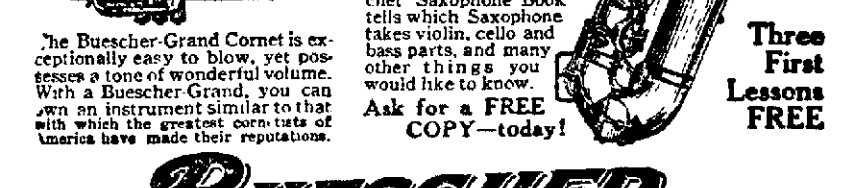

You are welcome everywhere with a sweet-toned Buescher Saxophone. It is the one instrument that everyone can play—and it wholly satisfies that craving everybody has to personally produce music. It is so perfected and simplified that it is the easiest of all musical instruments to master.

You learn the scale in an hour's practice, play popular music in a few weeks, and take your place in orchestra or band within 90 days, if you so desire. Saxophone players are always in demand for dance orchestras.

Nothing can take the place of the Saxophone for home entertainment, church, lodge, school. It increases the pleasure you get out of life, increases your popularity and your opportunities.

Free Trial—Easy Payments
You may purchase any Buescher Saxophone, Cornet, Trumpet or Trombone or other Band or Orchestra Instrument on six days' trial, in your own home without obligation. If perfectly satisfied, pay for it on easy payments to suit your convenience.

Free Saxophone Book
After nearly 300 years supremacy, string instruments are almost entirely displaced by Saxophones in all nationally popular orchestras. The Buescher Saxophone Book tells which Saxophone takes violin, cello and bass parts, and many other things you would like to know. Ask for a FREE COPY—today!

BUESCHER

Smith, Ben Selvin, Ben Krueger (Brunswick Records), Henry Santrey, Vincent Lopez, Carl Fenton (Brunswick Records), Gene Rodemich (Brunswick Records), and thousands of others.

$500 to $1000 weekly for but two hours a day is not uncommon for musicians of such ability to earn. You may have equal talent and enjoy the most pleasant of vocations.
